HARIT PRAN

A nation can only be said to be advanced where citizens are economically, mentally, physically and socially advanced. At the same time, one major problem of the world is contributing its share in minimizing environmental pollution. If the seeds of environmental protection fall into the minds of the future headmen of the country when they are young, they will take the form of a banyan tree and make a great contribution to the progress of the country and society. In the interest of Indian society, therefore, to imbibe the same approach in order to educate every student of the country in a healthy environment. Scholar's Pride Academy has inspired the founding institution of the country's "green life" and plantation, water conservation, clean India, polio - free India, In regard to land conservation, etc., he has made a contract for his students to be inspired from time to time by this institution and to work on the ground in this direction.
